Plan to triple regional buses

A plan that will triple public transit service in the Western Community and on the Saanich Peninsula was unveiled today at a meeting of the Capital Regional District's transit plan-

Larry Miller, assistant general manager of the Urban Transit Authority, said at the end of the first year of operation the suburban transit services will have carried 975,000 people. This represents 15 rides per capita or a tripling of the present level. Operating costs for serving the Western Com-nunity will be $836,000. A total of $742,000 will be needed for the Saanich Peninsula. The average fare for Western Community transit will be 60 cents while the average for the peninsular service will be 75 cents.

Miller proposed that transit focal points designed to serve local patterns be established at Colwood Corners, downtown Sidney, Saanichton,

He identified two regional transit service corridors. The western corridor would link Colwood Corridors with downtown Victoria while the northern corridor would link Swartz Bay (with Gulf Island ferry connection), Sidney, Saanichton and Royal Oak with downtown Victoria.

Goldstream - connects Goldstream and Langford with Colwood Corners. Sooke Road - connects Sooke, Luxton, Glen Lake with Colwood Carners.

Metchosin Road - connects Pedder Bay, Happy Valley, rural Metchosin, Albert Head and urban Metchosin with Colwood Corners.

The increased cash is included in $131.6 million worth of unconditional grants to 140 B.C. municipalities announced by the minister. That is an increase of 19.7 per cent over the 1979 level of $189.9 million.

Vander Zalm said Victoria's grant under the pro-vincial government's revenue-sharing program will be $4,084,427 this year — up 21.1 per cent over 1979. Saanich gets a grant of $4,568,939, up 14.5 per cent. Oak Bay will receive $1,-137,015, which is 20.2 per cent higher than last year.

Unconditional grants for four other Victoria area municipalities are also significantly higher this year

Esquimalt gets $972,236, up 18.5 per cent. Central Saanich will receive $469,-697, an increase of 27.2 per cent. North Saanich's grant of $284,073 is up 22.1 per cent while Sidney gets $115,942,

We show you mistakes to watch out for.

Everyone agrees that RRSP's are one of the very best ways to increase retirement income and reduce current income taxes. But not everyone knows about the little RRSP mistakes that can reduce that income.

We do. Here are some of the more obvious ones. Our free booklet will help you understand more about RRSP's and how they work.

Steer clear of places that don't offer a full range of plans.

There are different kinds of RRSP's, providing various combinations of security, interest earnings and flexibility. Royal Trust offers a unique range of six plans. Our booklet and good advice will give you a clear picture of how your choice of plans today will benefit you at retirement, or even in a few years' time. Dodge the misuse of cash. Borrowing your RRSP money may be the wiser way.

Say you have money set aside for your RRSP, yet at the same time, you're planning a loan for some other major purchase. That could be a mistake...you may be wiser to use your cash for that purchase, and borrow the money for your RRSP.

You see, Royal Trust offers Tax Saver Loans for RRSP's, and they have one big advantage: Interest payments on Tax Saver Loans

(except for loans taken for spousal RRSP's) are tax deductible in the year they're paid...so tax savings can offset a portion of your interest costs. In short, you could be well ahead.

Don't dent your retirement income by putting all your deposits in your own RRSP, when maybe you should contribute to a plan in the name of your spouse.

This can often earn you the same tax advantages today while gaining you some very valuable future tax savings when the retirement income is received.

For instance, if you both have plans, then you'll both be eligible to receive the first $1,000 tax exempt each year when you draw on them for fetirement income after age 65. Further, it often makes sense to build retirement income in the name of the person expecting the lower marginal tax rate after retirement.

"One thing you can count on — when we say we'll do it, we'll do it," he told a press conference Monday.

The premier refused to put a price tag on the concept or even to indicate the extent of the provincial government's financial commitment

Bennett was asked if he shouldn't be considered reckless, going into a memmoth project with only the provncial government's initial funding of $25 million in

"Don't be negative," he said. "I don't think this gov; ernment could ever be considered reckless finan

The B.C. government is switching to smaller, fuel-effi-cient vehicles and Energy Minister Bob McClelland wanted to give an example Monday when outlining the long-awaited energy policy.

McClelland informed his staff Friday he wanted a Honda Accord in his parking spot by 4:30 p.m.

His staff was forced to bypass the government's purchasing commission because of the time factor and the hunt started. The vehicle was not available in Victoria or Vancouver but Nanaimo dealer Graeme Roberts had one

The purchase required quick approval from the treasury board which was granted by Finance Minister Hugh Curtis. its chairman.

However, there was no time for the normal paperwork, so a senior civil servant with signing authority was dispatched to Nanaimo with a secretary to pick up the minis ter's new car, which retails for just under $8,000 plus tax.

Foolish statement

The New Democratic Party candidate in Victoria is claiming sensitivity and understanding in his advertise nents for this election - sensitivity to whom? The people of Victoria who only last November elected him to his position of alderman to represent them on city council? His callous dis-missal of their trust to work for them in city affairs, and his using Victorians as a stepping stone to Ottawa does not illustrate sensitivity.

As to his understanding, how practical is that, when he makes grandiose pronouncements like "sanctions against the United States" to stop tankers moving down our coast. The tankers carrying oil from Alaska to Washington are American-built, American-crewed and controlled by stringent American environment standards. Most important, the tankers are moving through international waters, not Canadian waters, and only started moving because Canada stopped shipping by pipeline. Even if all the foregoing were not true, in what practical sense does the NDP candidate propose that this country impose sanctions against Canada's largest trading partner? My understanding of the Feb. 18 election is that the New Democratic Party is not going to form the pext government and therefore a vote for them is wasted. My sensitivity to politicians making grandstand pronouncements, like "sanctions against the U.S.A." is abused by both the foolish absurdity of the statement and total disregard for the intelligence of hello Toronto. The journalists' section on our DC-9 only a little over half full. It would seem that riding in the aluminum cocoon is no longer the fashionable way to cover election campaigns. Access to Trudeau has been almost non-existent. He seems to be travelling around like a Miss World winner who doesn't mind being used as long as she gets the prizes. The mood is reserved — with reporters switching on and off different planes so often. It takes a while to kick-start the traditional cameraderie.

Trudeau addresses students at Scarborough College. A sign hangs over him proclaiming there will be a sexual awareness meeting next week. He is jeered by some students but it soon becomes obvious the majority of them are stumbling over themselves in an effort to please him. There is no hard news here - what is the lead?

Tuesday, Jan. 29: Toronto again. Charlottetown has been cancelled be-cause the strategists have decided Trudeau should make a major foreign policy speech and Charlottetown for some reason would be a weird place to do that. Everyone is astounded that foreign affairs has become an election issue. But it worked for Jimmy Trudeau's foreign policy speech is a disappointment, obviously designed to do little more than remind the electorate that Clark looks out of place sitting anywhere near Valery Giscard d'Estaing and to try to reverse Trudeau's stand on boycotting the Olym pics without appearing to do so. Press aide Pat Gossage works his patented soft sell to try to convince reporters there's not much inconsistency be tween the old and new boycott positions, but nobody's buying it. The polls have shown the Liberals far in the lead. Trudeau isn't co-operating with the press, and if there is any leeway in interpreting any of his performances he's not going to get much help here.

Jim Fleming, the Toronto MP, does the warmup for Trudeau at the Red Oak Inn, and for the first time this week the Liberals take the high road on foreign policy. Kind of. Fleming says the Liberals "don't take anything away" from the Conservatives for having pulled of the "coup" of getting the six Americans out of Tehran, but then reminds the audience of well-dressed Liberals that nothing can make up for Jerusalem.

Sylvia Sutherland, a television interviewer and the Liberal candidate in Peterborough, then finds a road lower than the Dead Sea, by quoting all the non-Liberal politicians who paid high and emotional tribute to Trudeau when he announced he was resigning last November. Even Trudeau seems embarrassed, muttering weakly "that is the rule of politics - when we get out for awhile people see our virtues more clearly than when we are in."

His speech itself reveals Liberal anxiety about getting away from for-eign policy and back to domestic issues, suggesting they're finding it a touch difficult competing with buddybuddy phone calls from Jimmy

There's been a change in people's attitudes toward Victoria's future

By Barbara McLintock and Leslie Yates

Ten years ago Victoria looked ahead to the 1970s.

In the midst of an economic boom and a steadily growing population, planners and academics gathered census figures, Statistics Canada predictions, and school enrolment projections to provide a look to the

The look was uniformly optimistic. The economy was expected to flourish, continuing to ride the crest of the country-wide boom. Trade with the Pacific Rim countries was expected to become a major part of B.C. and Victoria industries. And the growth was expected to continue everywhere.

It was still the era of "bigger is better" and nearly everyone was looking forward to a growth rate of 2.5 per cent per year or more.

In a 1969 report, civic planners estimated the Greater Victoria population would reach 245,000 by 1981. Even more amazing, they predicted that almost half those people — 103,000 — would live in Saanich municipality.

Only a few far-seeing folk — chief among them Hugh Curtis, then Saan-ich mayor, now B.C. finance minister — were beginning to warn that Greater Victoria might not be able to cope with so much growth, that providing housing and jobs for such an influx of people might be a problem, or that so much growth might impair the quality of life that attracted everyone to Victoria in

What has happened? Were the pre-dictors right? What factors did they overlook? And, based on that experience plus the figures and statistics of the past 10 years, what will Greater Victoria be like at the end of this decade? With what problems will it have had to cope?

sary to install sophisticated urban services, such as sidewalks, street-lights, a more extensive water system, and especially a sewer system Given the rocky, hilly nature of much of the land in the communities, such servicing would be extremely expensive, perhaps prohibitive.

That brings matters to the heart of the first crisis that many planners expect to hit Greater Victoria in the - the housing crisis. Even with the population growing more slowly, it appears Victoria may face a serious shortage of reasonably priced, affordable housing.

For one thing, the slower growth rate will not mean a corresponding decrease in the actual number of households — and, hence, housing units — required. One important part of the change expected in the next decade is a smaller average household size. Where the majority of house holds once consisted of two parents and one, two, or more children, other patterns are now becoming dominant.

Many more households consist of retired singles or couples, young singles or couples living on their own, or single-parent families of one adult with one or two children. And, as is ound right across Canada, even in the so-called "normal," two-parents-plus-children household, the number of children is steadily on the

This decrease in average house-hold size will peak in the 1980s, pre-dicts Capital Regional District planner Brian Weekley, as the last products of the 1950s baby boom move away from their traditional family homes to begin households on their own.

While family-oriented subdivisions will continue to give Central Saanich, Colwood and Langford average house hold sizes of 3.1 people, forecasts are that in Victoria proper the average size will drop below two to 1.8 persons per usehold) by 1984. The average house hold size across the region is expected

In 1969, Saanich's population was expected to be 103,000 by 1981. Instead, it is 76,000 today and may not reach 108,000 by 1996.

a decade ago were unduly high. The population now is closer to 220,000 than 245,000, and the growth rate has slowed substantially. The distribution of growth has also been significantly different than the predictions of a decade ago. Saanich's population and economic growth made population is only about 76,000 instead of 103,000, and the municipality is asking that it not be expected to go higher than 108,000 even by 1996. The populations of Victoria city, Esquimalt, and Oak Bay are also somewhat smaller than was predicted.

Growth spurts have instead come in the so-called Western Communities from View Royal to Sooke and out along the Saanich Peninsula through Central Saanich, North Saanich, and Sidney. The total population of these outlying areas is now about 52, 500, more than 40 per cent higher than the 38,000 predicted in 1970.

Most observers attribute this to a change in attitude throughout the region. In the latter part of the 1970s residents of Saanich decided they were not prepared to become a high-density, bedroom community for the rest of the region. Tough urban containment boundaries, discouragement of spot zoning, a slowing of the sewerage program, and a strong emphasis on the preservation of farmland have combined to slow the growth rate in Saan-

In Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, the same sorts of preservation movements have stopped the rede-velopment of older neighborhoods into high-density apartment blocks and have discouraged the construction of high-rise buildings.

The same sort of movements came later to the more outlying areas. Indeed, many would argue that they still have not come to the Western Communities. Growth on the Saanich Penits is nometain allowed by pre cial requirements to preserve farmland and by some public opposi-tion to major subdivision and develop-

In the Western Communities, growth continues apace, but recently the warnings have gone out that this cannot continue. Planners have been saying that to maintain growth at anticipated rates, it will be neces-

Over-all, the estimates of both to fall from 2.5 persons to 2.3 within the next four or five years.

> Weekley predicts that within 15 years, the over-all population of the region will have increased to about 290,000, a rise of 32 per cent, but the number of households will have grown to about 130,000, an increase of about 60 per cent.

> The 290,000 figure, he explains, is based on an annual growth rate of about 1.4 per cent, considered relatively low for Canadian communities, but about the Victoria average for the past five or six years. With the declining birth rate of the 1970s, most of the net growth of the commu-nity comes from in-migration, mainly from other parts of Canada. In recent years, the number of new migrants coming to Victoria each year has averaged 4,500.

> Weekley warns, however, that predicting population figures is a tricky business because many factors, including the availability of jobs and housing, tend to affect growth pat-terns. It's a lucky thing because otherwise it appears likely the city would be swamped with new migrants every > Studies show that Victoria always will attract more people than the average community of the same size because of its natural beauty, its favorable climate, and the amenities it offers. Serious shortages of jobs or housing will most often discourage people from coming.

And those shortages are two of the problems Weekley and his fellow planners predict will be uppermost for Greater Victoria residents and politicians in this decade.

In housing, it is the problem of creating new units for the new households expected to be springing up. Many of these will be composed of young people just leaving home, taking their first jobs. They probably will not be able to afford to purchase a traditional detached house as costs of land, servicing, and construction continue to rise. At the same time, the over-all aging curve in the popu lation means more and more of their parents will be reaching retirement age, having to watch their incomes, and finding it more and more difficult to maintain a large, single-family dwelling — let alone buy a new Housing experts across the country are saying that people's expecta-tions will have to change. They will have to expect to live in denser townhouse or apartment accommodation - and they will have to expect that sort of accommodation to be built

So far, it seems few people believe it. Nearly every suggestion for greater townhouse or apartment development in traditionally single-family areas is met with determined opposition from existing residents concerned about losing their privacy and view for the dubious gain of greater traffic and noise. Ask any municipal politician who has tried to rezone land for multi-family developments.

Weekley's view is that nothing but the hard financial realities will change people's attitudes. He notes, for example, that predictions now are that the Western Communities should absorb 38,000 new residents within the next 15 years, and the unwritten assumption is that most of them will live — and will want to live - in single-family subdivi-

Yet engineers are warning that no more than one quarter of them can be fitted in without the provision of proper services. No one will suggest precisely what the services will cost, but whispered comments are that they could add at least $20,000 to the price of every single-family home. And that would simply price houses out of the range of the average family.

An increasing realization of such facts, several planners believe, will encourage different types of development. They are enthusiastic about medium and high-density residential units downtown and on the fringes of downtown. The proposal by the city of Victoria to add 6,000 persons through apartments in the Harris Green eastern downtown area is looked on favor-

If finding housing will be a prob-lem for young people in the next decade, equally so will be finding

Victoria's population, like that across Canada, is aging. It follows a curve with two significant bulges. One occurs in the over-60 age group, but the other is those same young people who are now entering the job market for the first time. These were the children who strained school facilities to the breaking point 10 to 15 years ago, who caused the building of more and more classrooms, the hiring of more and more teachers. Now they are graduating from high school, from community colleges, from universities, and they are plac-ing the same strain on the local join

About 96,000 jobs now exist in the Greater Victoria area. Predictions are that, to keep up with the growing labor force, another 50,000 will have to be created in the next 15 years.

They need not all be full-time, year-round jobs. The increasing number of women working to supplement family incomes means that, for some useholds, a summer tourist industry job or a year-round part-time job would be enough to give the needed extra

Even so, economists believe a sustained, intensive effort will be needed to create the economic growth that will give Victoria's young people a reasonable expectation of finding employment in their home city.

At the moment only three cateof business and industry actually bring in new money, and hence, economic growth. All the rest merely circulate the money that is already in the community and often end up sending money away from Victoria in return for the purchase of goods made

The three truly productive sectors of our economy are: tourism, govern-ment, and, perhaps most surprising, the manufacturing sector.

Curiously, the tremendous growth of tourism in the '70s was not predicted at the beginning of the decade. Predictions in 1971 were that by the end of the decade the net worth of tourism to the region might approach

Instead, in 1978 (the last year for which full figures are available) direct spending by tourists was estimated at $108 million. Many believe the indirect benefits from tourism - including everything from persons who buy land and build cottages after visiting the Island to those who start up new businesses here — might now total as much as $400 million annually.

Planners are optimistic about the continued growth of tourism. A recent study estimated that, unless the oil crisis completely cripples trans-portation, tourism should continue to increase by at least six to 10 per cent annually during the 1980s. But, says Weekley, "it needs nur-ring" if it is going to grow and provide greater employment. Studies show that Victoria's island location limits severely the types of manufac-turing that can locate here successfully. Transportation costs will prove an albatross to any industries other than those which have a high ratio of value to weight.

VICTORIA TIMES, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1980 5

At the same time, the other agegroup bulge (the late teens and early 20s) also tends to use a lot of public services - in their case, transit and recreation services, for instance—without yet having had the time to build up the capital to contribute significantly to the economy.

The group that historically contributes most to the economy — the group between ages 35 and 55 — will be a steadily declining proportion of the total population.

The decline in the number of young will also pose problems for civic ad-ministrators. In the late 1970s, school districts were already wrestling with the problem of declining enrolment too many teachers and too many schools — all resulting from the baby boom. But how do you reduce costs without laying off teachers or, in the face of strenuous parental objections, closing schools?

Trends of declining enrolment are expected to spread to colleges and universities by the end of the decade, forcing them to try to continue programs without the same levels of funding being available.

Over-all, the predictions in 1980 are not nearly so optimistic as they were 10 years ago.

"In fact, we're leading up to an unspoken horrendous problem," said one planner. 'The predicted growth and shifts in our population will give us a very difficult decade in terms of providing jobs, housing and the services that our residents want.

One-liner Rhino horns in on minister

By AL FORREST

Loudest applause at a twin all-candidates meeting Wednesday went to Tory Allan McKinnon in the Victoria riding and to Rhino Robert Maddocks in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Maddocks, who is in the race for laughs and has a good supply of one-liners, got an ovation for declaring that Pierre Trudeau has stolen the Rhino's main promise - to resign if

The Rhino party has retaliated. It has announced it plans to double-track its pro-posed tunnel from Canada to Japan, borrowing Trudeau's pledge to lay an additional CN track through the Rocky Mountains.

The event was jointly sponsored by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the Victoria Gyro Club. The chamber reversed an earlier announcement and let the Rhino party attend

Among the serious entries, McKinnon got the warmest ovation, both when he was introduced and following his speech.

Applause was polite but subdued for NDP candidate Robin Blencoe, Liberal Bruce Corbett and Marxist-Leninist Dorothy Ratzlaff. Rhino Kirk Higgins was invited but was not

For the Esquimalt-Saanich riding, applause for the four serious candidates was surprisingly equal. Speaking were Tory Don Munro, NDP candidate Bob Cameron, Liberal Gerry Kristianson and Philip Ney, who is an independent candidate running on an antiabortion platform.

As for the NDP, he said, they always vote in favor of any expenditure (except defence). But then later they vote against any tax measure to pay for the thing they voted for earlier.

The defence minister-said his budget would be increased by the inflation rate plus three per cent this year (about 13 per cent in all) and Canada will buy new fighter planes and frigates soon.

Blencoe (NDP): He said the NDP and the business community will come closer together during the 1980s to deal with the problems fac-

The NDP will become more supportive of the free enterprise system, he said, and at the same time businessmen will seek a larger role by government in the economy A mixed economy will replace the present

Victoria. He called Conservative tax amendments allowing small businessmen to pay their wives a salary and to receive lower-interest loans as "pitiful scraps."

The Liberals believe it is wise to borrow to spur the economy, even if the country goes into debt. He added that 95 per cent of the debt is owed to Canadians.

He reckoned the gas tax proposed by the Conservatives would have cost Canadians $19 billion by 1984 whereas in the same period the mortgage tax rebate would have returned them only $7 billion.

Ratzlaff (Marxist-Leninist): She said her party would make the rich pay but assured the audience that her definition did not include small businessmen like those at the meetingjust large monopoly capitalists.

She said her party does not advocate a violent coup but believes there may be violence eventually because "a ruling class does not relinquish its status peacefully.'

ESQUIMALT-SAANICH.

Munro (Progressive-Conservative): He said the Liberals had added enormously to Canada's debt, had emasculated Parliament and had deliberately cut down on the armed forces.

There is a stereotype that the NDP promotes a large civil service, he said, and yet Saskatchewan, which has an NDP government, has the lowest number of civil servants per capita of any province in Canada.

Kristianson (Liberal): He called the Tory action to withhold further government fund-ing from the Trident plant at Sidney "economic sabotage."

He said a Liberal government would honor commitments to provide further grants. He said the Clark government should be defeated "before it can do any more damage to Vancouver Island." Ney (Independent): He said there are 1,000 families in B.C. waiting to adopt children and yet abortions continue. Since abortions were liberalized in 1969, he said, there have been 300,000 in Canada,

Frequent abortions has led to a cheapening of human life, he said. The most common cause of death among youngsters in the U.S. is infanticide.

Maddocks (Parti Rhinoceros): He offered no serious platform. He said of tankers could be kept out of local waters by bringing back Ripple Rock (which was blasted out of Georgia Strait because it was a hazard to shipping.)

He said Canada should have a negative loan interest rate. "When you borrow money, they should pay you."

This payment, he said, would be subject to tax and Ottawa could use the money to pay the banks. The result would be the same as it is now, he said, except the money would go around the circle in a different direction.

In a question period, Maddocks said his position on abortion was simple: "If necessary, yes; if not necessary, no."

Other candidates (except Ney) took the same stand as the Rhino party, only they took longer to say it.

On capital punishment, only the two Tory candidates McKinnon and Munro had no hesitation in supporting it. Kristianson said he might vote yes and the others said they were

As usual in the discussion the Rhino Party had the last word.

"How do I feel about capital punishment? we have a saying in this country let it all hangout."

The provincial government has ordered all B.C. municipalities to tell their taxpayers that 1980 tax increases would be considerably higher if not for handouts from Victoria.

The government passed an orderin-council Jan. 18 instructing all muni cipal councils to print the following message on their tax forms:

"Last year without provincial government revenue sharing your general municipal taxes would have increased by (appropriate percentage) to provide similar levels of service."

And just to make sure the message gets across, it "must go on the face of the tax notice in either bold face type or contrasting color.' Not too subtle.

The Liberal government had promised to loan $4 million and half that amount had been spent by Trident when the Conservatives came to power. The Conservative government has not forwarded the remaining $2 million. Morrison said the BCDC is angry over the Conservative decision. "What gets western politi

Morrison said the BCDC is determined to save Trident. not only to establish an aircraft plant in the west but because of the spinoff industries associated with it.

Firbreglass manufacturers would get increased orders and there would be a need for a company that can paint airplanes.

"At the present time, if you want your plane painted you have to go to Edmonton," he said. Morrison said, however, it

Gerry Kristianson, Liber al candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said if the Liberals are elected, he will get written confirmation on the restoration of loans as soon as the new cabinet is sworn in. He said this action would free the interim loans from BCDC and save the Trident Morrison said the Conservatives appear obsessed with the idea of reducing expenditures.

Trident remains an excellent investment for the province, he said, and B.C. has no hesitation in supporting it, not only because it will give the west a plane manufac-turing industry but because

Minister rebukes Elworthy

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser Monday publicly rapped the knuckles of B.C. Steamship Corp. president Arthur Elworthy for his general manager Charles Gal

I am the official spokesman for B.C. Steamships, not Mr. El-worthy," said Fraser, the minister responsible for both Crown corporations.

'It is quite unfortunate that this has become a public issue and I intend to deal with it."

Gallagher said in an interview today that he is going to talk to his lawyer about some of Elworthy's remarks Some of the comments were made because Elworthy did not have the right information, he said, but

In a confidential letter, leaked Friday, Elworthy accused Gallagher of acting contrary to the public interest by insisting the ferry Queen of Surrey be used on the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run instead of releasing the vessel for use on the Victoria-Seattle run as a replacement for the Princess Marguerite

The government decided instead to lease the much smaller Queen of Prince Rupert to B.C. Steamships as the Marguerite's replacement

Elworthy wrote that Gallagher was obsessed with having the Surrey on the northern service. He charged the ferry chief with incompetence and added, "He has deceived his board of directors, his minister and, of course, the pre-

Fraser denied that anyone Had been "bamboozled" by Gallagher.
"I don't agree with that observa-ton t agree with that observa-tion at all," said Fraser.

"Mr. Gallagher was carrying out the board of directors' policy deci-sions. I don't think he should be eriticized for that."

Although he said he would be talking to Elworthy about his criticism, Fraser indicated there would be no official reprimand.

"It's a free country and Mr. El-worthy is entitled to say what he thinks," the minister said

Fraser said he doesn't know where Elworthy got the impression the Surrey had been promised for the Victoria-Seattle run and had only been sent north because of Gallagher's obstinacy. The minister pointed out that Premier Bill Bennett announced the decision to put the Surrey on the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run as far back as last May 31.

Fraser made no reference to a poorly-concealed cabinet split on

The transportation minister esti-mated that refitting and renovating the Queen of Prince Rupert for the Vitoria-Seattle service will cost about $1 million.

slightly Tuesday in a carryover of Monday's late selloff.

Analysts said there was no special news development that touched off the decline.

They noted that the mar-ket behaved sluggishly in early trading Monday, apparently convincing traders that the rally of the past four weeks had at least temporarily run of out steam.

Selling was particularly evident in many of the stocks that enjoyed the best gains in January, such as oil and de fense issues.

Some of those issues steadied today, however. Boeing, for example, wasup 1/8 to $65%. On Monday Boeing reported higher fourth quarter earnings, raised its dividend and announced plans for a 3-for-2 stock split.

National Semiconductor rose % to $36%. The company declared a 50-per-cent stock dividend — the equivalent of a 3-for-2 split.

Lake Placid sellout hopes sagging

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — If you want VIP treatment and the best seat in the house to all the Winter Olympic events, you can buy a gold card for a mere $10,000.

But don't worry. There are still some tickets available omewhere for virtually every event, and some are being

With less than two weeks to go until the Games open, officials of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee say they have sold less than 80 per cent of their total tickets, but still maintain they expect to sell 90 to

But some programs, like gold cards and tightly-organized tours, are faring badly, even as the first reports of scalping filter in.

The LPOOC has 550,000 tickets to sell to some 90 events over 12 days. Prices range between $10 and $60, before tax and handling charges, and average $25.

But because housing in and transportation to this isolated village are so difficult, the actual cost of attending a day's events is a lot higher.

Cost, along with mild weather and political uncer-tainties, has eaten away at the LPOOC's early hopes for a sellout, and at least one tour operator has started to sell some tickets below retail.

A check at the office set up for individual over-the-counter sales showed tickets available for 55 events, including some hockey playoffs, but no figure skating.

"We're probably very close to 80 per cent of capacity right now," LPOOC admissions director Kevin McHale said Monday. "If the demand maintains as it has been right."

That is a relief for LPOOC officials, who fear agents may try to sell tour tickets without transportation.

The tour tickets will have a corner cut off, and a spectator who comes up in a private car with them supposedly will be turned back at roadblocks on the three two-lane roads that lead here.

None of this will be a problem for William Randall, a One agent, Arlo Tours, opened an office just a few doors from McHale's to try to unload a backlog of tickets $30,000 to buy four gold cards.

Randall, who grew up in Parrishville and Potsdam, N.Y., near here, has lived in California since the Second World War. However, he bought a house here after Lake Placid was designated as the site of the 1980 Games. and he plans to bring his wife and fine or 10 other guests to use the $8,800 worth of first-class tickets.

Only nine of the cards have been sold — the rest to corporations — and the LPOOC has another 70 on hand,

"I have to sell it with my housing, or my housing will be useless," he said.

But Arlo will sell many of its tickets to less popular events a few cents or more below cost, and it will throw

Ali the wrong man in the wrong place?

By DAVE ANDERSON

NEW YORK — In the years when Muhammad Ali was sifting offers for his multimillion-dollar fights, the world heavyweight champion once boasted, "I don't deal with promoters, I deal with nations." But now that he is dealing with nations on an issue much more important than his boxing finances, he probably wishes he were dealing with promoters. President Carter probably wishes that, too.

At the request of the president, the now retired champ is touring five African nations to present the United States position on the proposed boycott of the Moscow Olympics. But he seems to be doing more harm than good. When he provided in Korue Moscow has the seems to be doing more harm than good. arrived in Kenya Monday, he accused the president of sending me around the world to take the whipping" for the United States. At his first stop in Tanzania, the president there, Julius Nyerere, had refused to meet with him because he was a "boxer" rather than an official diplomatic envoy. And at a news conference there the next day, hard questions by Tanzanian newsmen battered him in a political rope-a-

Diplomats in Kenya, which announced Sunday that it would boycott the Moscow Olympics, also doubted that its president would meet with a "boxer."

For all his worldwide fame, Ali is discovering that he does not transcend boxing, at least not as an official representative of the United States government during an international crisis. He was described Monday by the State Department as a "private citizen," but he is on tour in a government jet.

Ali's storm is not Ali's fault. It's the fault of those who sent him. Obviously he was selected for his image as a black and as a Muslim rather than for his knowledge of the situation. But to anyone familiar with him, his genius is as a boxer and a celebrity - not as a political historian, not as a diplomat, not as an envoy.

Ali is scheduled to go on to Liberia, Nigeria and Senegal in what he now calls a "fact-finding mission" of those black African nations before filing his White House report. But the S. embassy officials in those nations surely have been alerted to Ali's response when the Tanzanian newsmen reminded him that the Soviet Union provides aid to some

"To me, Russia's a bad country," Ali was quoted as having replied, "but I don't know what Russia did for you. You tell me that the Russians are more your friends than the Americans. We're all brothers and I'm closer to you than I am to white Americans or white Russians."

After those remarks, U. S. embassy officials in Tanzania reportedly tried to cut short Ali's news conference. But he spouted off again in Kenya.

All spoke Monday of "going to protect myself," reverting to his instincts of a boxer under attack. During the hard political interrogation in Tanzania, he could not get by with "I'm the greatest' or with a poem or by predicting that he was going to give an opponent a "whupping." And when he was confronted with hard questions, he did not have hard

All his life, Ali has been the right man in the right place, even during his three-and-a-half year exile during his eventually victorious appeal to the Supreme Court of his draft-refusal conviction. But in Africa now, he is the wrong

The champ's connection with the Olympic boycott developed when he suggested to his Muhammad Ali Amateur Sports Club, which he founded and supports, that none of its 32 boxers and track-and-field athletes go to Moscow if chosen for the Olympic team. Ali's sentiment has been prompted by the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, a Muslim nation, "Ali is a Muslim," John Smith of the Ali Sports Club said at the time, "and he feels the Soviets are invading Afghanis-tan's rights."

Two years ago, however, Ali praised the Soviet Union during a Moscow visit. At the time he was quoted as having said, "There's no big shots here, everybody's plain and simple, even Mr. Brezhnev." He branded charges that there is no freedom of religion in the Soviet Union as a "lie" and spoke of "one hundred nationalities living in peace." But later he appeared to realize that perhaps the Soviets had

"You think," he was quoted, "they really could be just showing me the good parts?"

Ali, of course, won an Olympic gold medal in Rolle in 1960 but, as a private protest, threw it into the Ohio River shortly after returning to his Louisville home. After having been told by the Louisville mayor that the gold medal was his been told by the Course line and a second to the course line and the course line 'key to the city,' Cassius Clay, as he was known then, and a friend, Ronnie King, were refused service in a restaurant because they were black. After leaving the restaurant, they were attacked by a motorcycle-gang leader that Clay fought off. Moments later, he heaved his medal into the river.

Such are the complexities and the contradictions of Muhammad Ali, who now favors an Olympic boycott. For all his genius as a boxer and as a celebrity, Muhammad Ali is not equipped to handle a diplomatic mission during an international crisis. As even he explained when he Funked the military-service aptitude test about 15 years ago, "I only say I'm the greatest, not the smartest."

IOC locked into backing Moscow site

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The harassed International Olympic Committee (IOC) takes up residence in this small mountain ski resort this week to try to save the tottering Olympic Games.

The Winter Olympics, for which this village of 2,700 people has been preparing for six years, opens in eight days and no major problems are expected. But next weekend, the IOC will meet in a quaint, rambling timber-built country hotel to ponder over the fate of the threatened Summer Olympics in Moscow, post July, and executed the control of the tened Summer Olympics in Moscow next July, and over

As the Russians pour more and more troops into Afghanistan, and U.S. President Jimmy Carter presses on with his call for a boycott of Moscow, it appears likely the 1980 Olympics will be dramatically reduced in size or perhaps collapse altogether.

The governments of about 30 countries have supported Carter's call for the Games to be moved, cancelled or boycotted if Soviet troops are not pulled out of Afghanistan. National Olympic committees are the bodies to decide ultimately whether to send athletes, but many are expected to fall in behind their governments or be pressured by public opinion.

What can the IOC do in the next week to stem the tide

What can the IOC do in the next week to stem the tide

It is bound by the Olympic Charter and dedicated to the ideals of bringing the youth of the world together in sport every four years, irrespective of politics.

It is a purely international body with a curious and unique constitution of its own that gives it complete autonomy and makes it answerable to no one — governments, national sports authorities or anyone else. It also belongs as much to the Russians, who were admitted to the Olympic movement 30 years ago, as to the West.

The IOC is under contract to Moscow, which has been preparing since 1974 to stage the 21 sports and house 10,000 athletes, coaches and sports officials and 7,000 members.

ous lobby of the Detroit of each four-year Olympiad, and athletes all over the world plan their training to fit the four-year cycle. The charter stipulates the Games take place at the end

> In these circumstances Lord Killanin, Irish president of the IOC, has taken a firm line. He has said the Games cannot be moved from Moscow — either to Montreal, which staged them in 1976 and has all its facilities intact - or

He insists they cannot be postponed or cancelled. He is unlikely to change his position when he arrives in Lake Placid Wednesday to preside over the most difficult IOC session since he succeeded the late Avery Brundage ight years ago.

Thus far the vast Olympic family — 140 national O pic committees and 25 international sports federations—have remained largely faithful to the Olympic ideal and refused to commit themselves to a boycott. But many of them know they will have to bow to public opinion unless the unexpected happens and the Russians pull out of Afghanistan.

Julian Roosevelt, one of the IOC's two members in the U.S., reached Lake Placid on Monday — the first of the 89 members to arrive. He has campaigned strongly for the USOC to defy Carter and the public opinion polls and send a team to the Olympics as usual.

Monique Berlioux, the IOC's salaried director, came in Sunday to set the stage for the critical session. Monday she learned one piece of good news for the IOC. The Taiwanese Olympic Committee, fighting in the Swiss courts against the IOC's decision that it must compete at Lake Placid without its traditional flag and anthem, had its appeal

However, Taiwanese plans to compete at the Games

"We have a very definite position and that is we are prepared to compete," said Michael Lee, secretary general of the Republic of China Olympic Committee, whose nation is expected to enter 18 athletes at Lake Placid.

"We are more concerned over the suit filed at Platts-burg, N.Y." Berlioux said. That was filed by a Taiwan-ese athlete and the judge indicated he might rule the Taiwanese can use whatever flag they please. His deci-sion is expected this week.

The dispute is connected with the entry of Mainland China in the Games for the first time since the Commu-nist takeover. Peking has refused to compete as long as the Taiwanese use the old Republic of China flag.

Extra Easy win

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (AP) — Extra Easy led nearly all the way in winning the $155,000 El Primero Del Ano Derby for quarter horses by three-quarters of a length at Los Alamitos Race Course on Saturday night. Extra-Easy covered the 400-yard distance in 19.94 seconds and earned $69,750.

By Canadian Press

Spectacular Bid's trainer, Bud Delp, has claimed for by some time that his horse ranks as one of the best of all time, and the Bid's record-smashing performance in Sunray day's $214,500 Strub Stakes at Santa Anita will win Delp some

"I said before he turned three that he was one of the greatest horses of all time, so I can't say anything new," said Delp after Spectacular Bid clocked one minute, 57 4-5 seconds for the 1½-mile Strub. "No horse has ever run that fast in the history of American racing — that says

"The track was very fast, maybe too fast," added Delp with a grin. "Horses aren't supposed to run that fast."

The winning time bettered the U.S. record of 1:58 1-5 set Noor in 1950 and equalled by Quack in 1972.

The time also was a world record for the distance for a

The time also was a world record for the distance for a race run on dirt. The only faster 1½-mile outings recorded were on turf courses.

"There's no doubt about it, he's a great horse," said jockey Bill Shoemaker. "He's at least as good as any horse I've ridden in my career, and maybe better. "I just don't know what it's going to take to beat this horse."

Carrying 126 pounds, Spectacular Bid passed early leader Relaunch heading into the final turn, then burst to the front entering the home stretch, holding a 3½-length margin on Flying Paster at the wire.

Delp said his instructions to Shoemaker before the race were simple: "I told him there were 58,000 (actually 57,993) people here today and we didn't want to disappoint them."

The victory completed a sweep by Spectacular Bid of the three-race Strub Series for four-year-olds. He took the Malibu Stakes in late December, then won the San Fernando Stakes last month

Malibu Stakes in late December, then won the San Fernando Stakes last month.

The prohibitive favorite in the field of only four, smallest ever in the 18-year history of the Strub, Spectacular Bid returned $2.60 and $2.10.

The victory, Spectacular Bid's 20th in 24 career starts, was worth $124,500 to owners Harry, Theresa and Tom Meyerhoff and raised the lifetime earnings of the son of Bold Bidder to $1,899,417.

Opening lead - queen of spades.

Let's say you're declarer at four spades and West leads the queen of trumps. You can't tell yet whether there's a trump loser, but you should assume there is because, if there isn't, the contract is ce-cold. The only tricks you could less if the tricks you could lose if the trumps were divided 2-2 would be two hearts and a club.

You can't do anything at all about the club loser, or the trump loser if there is one. But you can hold yourself to one heart loser if East has the A-Q or if he has either the ace or queen and you guess whether to play the king or jack after leading a heart from dummy.

There is a grave danger of rinere is a grave danger of misguessing the actual heart situation, and if you went down as a result of having played the jack instead of the king, or the king instead of the jack, you might feel like kicking yourself (if your partner didn't kick you first).

The best plan by far is to

The best plan, by far, is to try to avoid the heart guess altogether. In line with this, you should win the queen of drumps in dummy with the ace and return a club. After East follows low, you play the jack! You don't expect the jack to win — and, of course, it doesn't. West wins with the king and returns the now you're in full control of the situation. You win the jack with the king, cash the ace of clubs, and play three rounds of diamonds. If West ruffs, he will have to return a hoost will have to return a heart or yield a ruff and discard. If West doesn't ruff, you put him on lead with a trump and thus place him in the same untenable position.

By adopting this method of play from the start, you avoid the horrible heart guess and so accomplish your mission.

Crown counsel Richard Law said the break-in occurred between 1 and 6 a.m. when Charlie and a younger companion broke in and took 10 felt pens, a briefcase, a radio, some leather, two bicycles, and two screwdrivers. They told Esquimalt police they went into the school

Phillips doesn't like port work conditions

Economic Development Minister Don-Phillips said Monday he is not happy that federal Transport Minister Don Mazan-kowski has demanded B.C. drop its claim to ownership of the Roberts Bank superport if it wants the federal government to Phillips was commenting on a weekend statement by Mazankowski in Fernie that Ottawa is willing to triple the size of the coal-handling facility if B.C. drops ownership claims.

The ownership issue is before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Phillips said that, while he is pleased Mazankowski has shown interest in expanding the port, he does not like the conditions attached to the offer.

B.C. views expansion and ownership as two separate issues, he said. Mazankowski said the federal government will fund a $47.7 million expansion of the superport provided a jurisdictional squabble is settled in its favor.

Phillips and Premier Bill Bennett last week ciriticized the federal government for delays in expanding the port.

Mazankowski said construction will begin this year on two additional terminals of about 20 hectares (66 acres) while the existing causeway will be witerminal without blocking access to year.

Mazankowski said every effort would be made to ensure that B.C. would concede the superport to Ottawa ownership of the superport to Ottawa through discussions with the province of B.C, adding he was encouraged with meetings held recently with B.C.

Broadbent promises funds for Trident plant

Ed Broadbent, flanked by Robin Blencoe, Bob Cameron, Dave Barrett

An ebullient Ed Broadbent bounded down the steps of his campaign jet it's dubbed FrigidAir - at Victoria airport Monday and gave B.C. NDP leader Dave Barrett a bear hug.

'Things are going extremely well," the national NDP leader

Broadbent's brief Victoria stop came as he headed for a night rally in Broadbent came out swinging in Duncan when he told a rally of about 800 supporters that Prime Minister Joe Clark failed to present a strong enough case against new tanker traffic down the West Coast.

The NDP leader said the case should have been made when U.S. President Jimmy Carter was trying to determine the best route for moving Alaskan oil to the lower 48 states. Broadbent, who said he sensed that "something exciting" is happening for the NDP in B.C., lashed out at the prospect of increased coastal oil tanker traffic and the sale of natural

Broadbent also criticized the Liberals and the Conservatives for export-ing natural gas to heat American homes when "we don't have a surplus

Barrett said resources fall under provincial jurisdiction and he doesn't ee the need for a uniform party policy nationally. He noted that Saskatchewan's NDP government supports uranium mining while the B.C. party does not.

On the Trigull issue, Broadbent said at Victoria airport: "It's Can-ada's only light amphibious aircraft. It's technologically innovative and it can do things other aircraft can't do.

Broadbent pointed out federal assistance programs got DeHavilland in Toronto and Canadair in Montreal off the ground and the companies are currently enjoying healthy profits.

"Trigull is an imaginative Canadian creation that does not want a handout. It wants loans less than those in Toronto and Montreal and the Tories have turned it down," Broad

I can't believe that you let Mrs. B. (the lady in pants) get away with one of the oldest dodges in the Christian world. She stated that she asked "someone" if it was all right to wear pantsuits to church and was told it was "frowned upon." So now Mrs. B. sits at home in front of her television, filled with anger and bitterness against 'church people.

This is one of the saddest situations a minister has to deal with. It's just another case of a person who was looking for an excuse not to attend church - and found one.

That lady couldn't have been very sincere about her faith in Jesus Christ to let one person's answer to a "set-up" question keep her away from the wor-shiping family of the church. God doesn't care what she wears to church, and most Christians would have been sympathetic if they had known the reason behind her inquiry.

So please, Abby, don't let Mrs. B. feel that she was justified in cutting herself off from other Christians for any reason. She will be the loser in the long run by denying many fine Christian people the opportunity to show her the kind of Christian love she obviously needs so badly.

Dear Reverend Bass:

Let's hear it from a minister.

Mrs. B. De Funiak who has to wear heavy surgical stockings because of varicose veins, said she asked someone if it was acceptable for a woman to wear pantsuits to church. She was told that it was "frowned upon."

You said people should not criticize until they have walked 20 years in her surgical stockings. You may have given some comfort to the lady, but with all the experience she's had with doctors, surely she knows how important it is to get a second opinion; in this case, from the minister of the church.
Perhaps you already have received a communi-

Lifestyles editor Lon Wood had this in mind when he sent me off to Lakehill Hair

Derek, a hot property in Hollywood nowadays, is beautiful. The braided hairstyle she wears in the picture looks wonderful on her. The result is that numerous hair salons

Plotting of hemophilia is easier now

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

We are a young married couple and are contemplating having a family.
One cousin, on my husband's side, has hemophilia. Is there any way of finding out beforehand if our child might inherit this condition?

Dear Mrs. R.:

Genetic scientists now have at their command the ability to study the chro-mosomes, to find if the hemophilia gene is likely to be transmitted. Much is known about hemophilia today that formerly was a mystery.

Very recently, a group of research workers at Yale University was able to determine before birth if a child would have hemophilia. By using highly complex immunological tests, amniotic fluid taken from the pregnant woman was analyzed and studied for possible hemophilia. Blood can also be taken diwestly from the placenta for taken directly from the placenta for the study of this and other genetic disorders.

The tremendous strides made by geneticists can give great assurance to any couple who are contemplating raising a family. Anyone with a family history of birth abnormalities should take advantage of the vast knowledge that has been accumulating.

Diamonds were first mined in India about 2,700 years ago. For the next 2000 years, India accounted for the world's entire supply of diamonds. Today, Africa has taken over as the focal point of this industry, with honorable mention going to Russia and South America.

The term "rare" is often used in describing diamonds and with good reason. When 250 tons of ore are blasted, crushed, and processed, it is likely that only one carat of rough diamond will be recovered. In turn, there is just a 20 per cent chance that this rough diamond will be suitable for cutting into a gem diamond.

Trunks trucked out as decorator items

Whether its steamer trunks, magician's trunks or ven wooden cubes, collectors are diligently seeking them out; top interior deco-rators are using them as cof-fee or end tables, loveseats, steptables, log holders, toy chests or just as plain objets d'art. Trunks first became popular around 1775 when they were designed small so they could fit carriages of that day. Made of wood they were sometimes covered with paper, leather, canvas or horsehair. The covering was held in place with strips of leather, metal, wood or large-headed nails. In the mid-1800s, rawhide trunks became popular but these, too, were quite small since freight was fairly expensive. The showman P. T. Barnum

I am a 15-year-old girl with a big problem. I am going with a guy who is 17 years old and very jealous. I have lots of friends that are guys, but when I'm with my boyfriend and say hello to them he gets very upset with me. I like my boyfriend very much, but he's turning all my friends against me. What should I do? I'm not close to my parents, so I can't talk to them about it and all my friends tell me to break up with my boyfriend. Please give me some advice.

I know that this is not what you've written about, but to me the saddest part of your letter is your distant relationship with your parents. It is often parents we turn to for advice, in times of need, or just to share thoughts and feelings that we can't express elsewhere. It's unfortunate that you think that it's impossible in your case.

You sound like a mature 15-year-old girl, probably more so than your boyfriend. Jealousy as extreme as he shows is very difficult to deal with. It probably stems from a basic insecurity about himself, and his relationship with you. He obviously feels threatened by other guys and feels that you may prefer them. Also, he may be swept up in how 'it looks" - appearances are often very important to some people

From my point of view, you don't have too many alternatives. Either you do nothing, and lose some friends; or you quit the relationship and lose him; or you sit him down and have a heart-to-heart discussion. I prefer the latter, but the end result may still be a break-up. He has to be told clearly that you care for him, and that you will continue to speak to your friends, male and female. If he can't handle it, then your choice is clear. He may be able to modify his jealousy if he is convinced of your affection, and you "appear" to prefer him at all times. I'm not sure this will satisfy him, or if you can pull it off, or even if it's worth the effort.

Dear Dr. Cotter:

I have been going around for four months with this guy. We like each other very much and have done considerable necking. We are both 14 years old. His parents know that we are going around and mine do not. I would like to tell them but I do not know how and I am afraid they will make us break up.

My parents know that I like this boy, but they do not know how far we have gone. I would like to be honest with my parents and not break up with this boy. What should I do? I have asked my Mom. but she says I am too young and that I have plenty of time for boys later. I am too young?

Biologically, you are not too young. But human beings need a lot of social and personal development before they are able to take on lasting relationships of a very deep nature. We also require years of vocational experience and training before we can handle the complex job situation of today and even then may not find the kind of occupa-tion we need. A job and work are considered an important part of life and a back-up to mating

You are really talking about mating, pairing off with another 14-year-old. The problem is that there are as many opportunities for growing in personal depth in short-term relationships as there are in the normal pattern of going to school and job training. You have to find the right mix.

The right mix for you should include a strong support from your parents — which will mean you have to be honest with them; no possibility of pregnancy, for you are not mature enough to take responsibility for another life; and some freedom to change, so that you are not bound to each other from so early an age. So you have to keep trust with your parents and keep the best in your relations with the

Dear Dr. Powell:

Is there any died or exercise I can do to keep me slim, trim? And when do you think I will start growing in height again? If not, do you think my family doctor could do anything about it?

The greatest growth in height — or the growth spurt, as it is often called — occurs during the months before menstruation begins. Growth slows down once a girl starts to menstruate because of the effect the hormones she is producing in her ovaries has on her bones. By the age of 15 you have almost stopped growing in height, so it is likely that your present height will be as tall as you will

There are many diets and many exercises you can do. The most important thing for you to realize is that in order to maintain your weight at an ideal limit you have to develop both an eating and an exercise pattern that will last you all your life. Your family doctor or your school nurse will provide you with a guideline for eating which gives you a balanced diet and a good meal plan.

The best exercises are running, jogging or swimming. Walk whenever possible, and climb stairs in-stead of using the elevator. Develop a lifestyle now that will keep you feeling and looking your best for

Roll your own

Rolling or braiding hair at home appears to be difficult, but it need not

Using a setting lotion, shoulder-length hair can be sectioned, rolled and twirled into a neat headhugging style that goes well with this season's turn to slimmer fash-

Here are step-by-step instructions for a sleek and tidy chignon, with the four-phase illustration starting clockwise with the picture at right.

First: Comb the hair through with a hair gel to keep the ends in control and for easy styling.

Second: Section the hair from ear to ear. The back gathers into a ponytail. The front is swept to one side, split in two and rolled.

Third: The rolled hair is pulled to the nape of the neck and tucked into a band holding the ponytail.

Fourth: The ponytail is twirled into a chignon at the nape of the neck and fastened.

The result is a chic, inexpensive and easy hairstyle.

Evelyn Swanson says she is treating girls whose throats, breasts, arms and stomachs are matted with a thick hair growth.

"I'm convinced that ex-cessive facial and body hair is becoming more of a physical and psychological prob-lem every year," she says.

"I've even treated women in mental hospitals whose commitment, I'm convinced, was the result of the traumas they went through because of their excessive hairiness.

There are four main causes of abnormal hair growth — heredity, glandular imbalance during puberty, pregnancy or meno

Electrolysis is not new.

More than a century ago an American doctor was reported to have removed ingrown eyelashes by electrolytic action — putting a needle charged with negative galvanic current into the hair follicle.

The hair shaft visible above the skin surface grows from a follicle — a tubular shaped socket. At its root is a hulbous area colled the means to the state of the bulbous area called the papilla which furnishes a sup-'ply of nutriments coming from the circulating blood stream

Sealing off or destroying the function of the papilla prevents further growth of Electrologists like Ms. Swanson opt for shortwave thermolysis, a process using heat generated by a high-fre-quency alternating current to "boil" away the moisture at the base of the hair follicle. This leaves the papilla and the hair germ cells dry and dead.

Costs for the treatments are approximately $30 an

Swanson says that when checking various clinics offering hair removal ser vićes, a customer should look for diplomas or certificates testifying to the technician's training.

She cautions that the customer shouldn't look for immediate, lasting results.

Conservative campaign needs turnaround this week

FP News Service
MONCTON, N.B. — If the turnaround the Tories so desperately need in their political fortunes is going to happen, this is the week.

Joe Clark knows he is man racing toward a deadline, but if he is gripped by some new sense of urgency, he is hiding it well. His aides, by contrast, are watching like hawks for any fresh sign of a shift towards their leader. They got some of what they wanted latest national election poll. The Con-servatives had made large, but not spectacular gains, much as they anticipated. But what really excited Clark's people was that the poll indicated a large and growing segment of the electorate was uncommitted. More voters were refusing to support any political party than had ever been the case in anyone's memory.

The poll, a telephone survey of 2,000 voters across the country, taken late last week showed the Liberals with 46 per cent of the committed vote, the Tories with 33 per cent and the NDP with 17 per cent. A staggering 40 per cent of those questioned were uncommitted — 10 per cent more than two weeks earlier.

Even Clark abandoned his usual practice of never commenting on opinion polls to say: "I can't think of any other election when the undecided vote has gone up in the middle of a cam-

"What I think is happening is that people are beginning to take a hard look at what the leaders are saying." Clark speculated that voters are pulling back from the Liberals as election day approaches after examining the issues for one last time. "That (assessment) is helpful to us and harmful to the Liberals.

It was a deliberately cautious, low-key remark. Clark would go no farther than to label the poll "interesting Still, the gloomy atmosphere and the testiness that had prevailed for the last couple of weeks aboard his campaign jet evaporated as it began it's final two-week hopscotch across the country. The mood was one of grim, but far from hopeless, determination.

The Conservative strategy is to sprint to the finish line with a six-provnce tour - from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia — this week and a similar game plan next week. The idea is to hit as many swing ridings as possible

On Monday night Clark had already waved the party flag in St. John for Eric Ferguson, who won with an uncomfortably slim 700-fote margin last May; for Paul Arsenault, one of the few Quebec Tories with even a remote chance of unseating the Liberal incumbent; for Gary Wheeler, who is expected to make a strong showing against the Liberal incumbent in Moncton, and for Jacques Blouin who is given little chance of winning Sept-

PCs 'punk show': Trudeau

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Pierre Trudeau said Monday the Pro-gressive Conservative government of Joe Clark is a "punk show" that should be turned off.

Speaking in animated manner sel-dom seen during the Feb. 18 election campaign, the Liberal leader likened the government to a Grade Z movie seen on television late shows. "You know it's a punk show," he told

6,000 supporters who filled a hall to

"You know we want to turn it off and get something better."

Trudeau delivered an arm-waving speech in which he departed from his prepared text at least half the time after an emotional public farewell to Robert Andras, Liberal MP for the area for 14 years, 11 of them in Trudeau cabinets.

After the government's defeat, Andras considered running for the Lib-eral leadership until Trudeau reversed a November decision to retire. Andras susbsequently announced he was dropping out of politics.

Andras, who served as president of the board of economic development in the last Trudeau cabinet, said the former prime minister is extraordinarily self-disciplined, sensitive, a passion-ate Canadian, a devoted father, an avid sportsman and a scholar.

Talking of cabinet proceedings, he said of Trudeau: "Firm yes, even tough, but arrogant? No, not the way I.

Trudeau told the audience the Conservatives are campaigning on the slogan "real change deserves a real chance" but their December budget shows "real change" means a $2-bil-lion tax increase, higher unemploy-ment and inflation, lower economic growth, a four-cent-per-litre (18-cent-per-gallon) increase in the excise tax on gasoline and a mortgage plan that would help only one segment of the

Meanwhile, in an interview taped earlier in Toronto, Trudeau said Canada would get the best of both worlds if he is elected prime minister Feb. 18 because he will not remain in office for a full term.

During the interview broadcast on the CBC television program The Wat-son Report, he said because he plans to retire before the next election he will not have to govern with one eye on maintaining his popularity.

Late Monday, Trudeau, the chief villain in Alberta politics for the last decade, was met by 600 cheering supporters when he arrived at his down-town Calgary hotel.

But the 60-year-old former prime minister left the banner-bearing, stetson-wearing crowd grumbling when he slipped quickly through the lobby and into an elevator without addressing his supporters.

Trudeau fought tooth-and-nail bat-tles with the Alberta and Saskatchewan government during the 1970s over energy pricing and taxation policies.

Today, he begins a swing through those same two provinces, where his party failed to elect a member in

Clark's hawk position on Afghanistan popular

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) - Prime Minister Clark stepped up his attacks on Liberal Leader Pierre Trudeau Monday as he entered the final two weeks of the Feb. 18 election campaign.

Speaking on open-line radio shows, in taped television interviews and to crowds of supporters here and Saint John, N.B.. Clark maintained the hawkish stance he has adopted toward the Soviet Union over its intervention in Afghanistan.

And he won some hearty applause when he reiterated his pledge to re-establish Canada's role as a full, responsible paying partner in NATO.

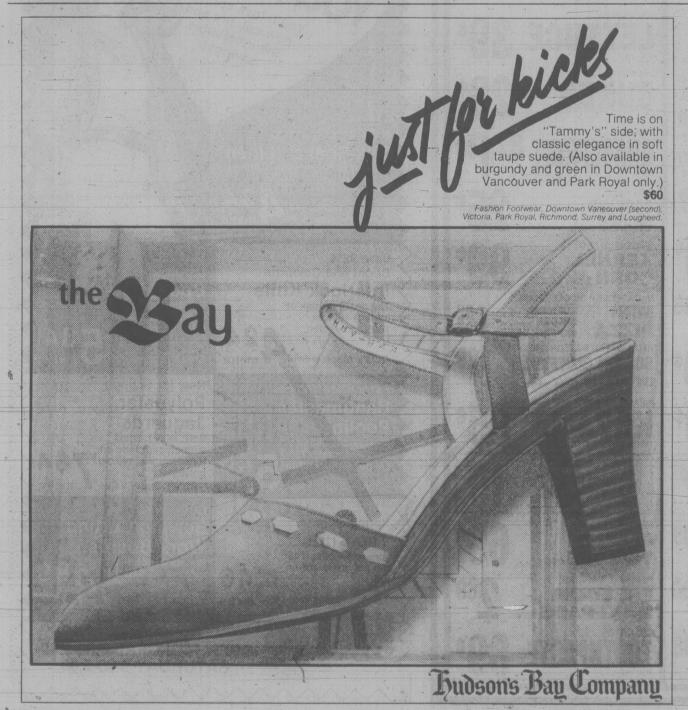

In what has become his standard pitch, Clark told audiences that Canada's armed forces and NATO involvement deteriorated under the Trudeau regime.

He said the Progressive Conservatives would increase defence spending and re-newed pledges to boost Canada's manpower and equipment commitments to the

The popularity of his tough anti-Soviet line was emphasized in Saint John when he prompted sustained cheers and applause at a noon-hour reception by merely men-tioning the name of External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald, who has been equally tough on the Soviet Union.

The Tory leader capped a hectic day of campaigning with a rousing evening rally here attended by more than 1,300.

Lawyer blasts dismissal of Time class action

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer says a decision dismissing a lawsuit on behalf of subscribers to the Canadian edition of Time magazine will jeopardize the future of class actions in the country if allowed to stand.

Richard Sommers said Monday the decision by Mr. Justice Douglas Carruthers of the Ontario Supreme Court places too heavy a burden on people wishing to begin class ac-

He said the demands imposed by the decision do not exist in the United States, where class actions are more established, or in Canadian precedents. Sommers said he will recommend his client appeal.

The action against Time Canada Ltd. was launched by Richard Cobbold, a University of Toronto engineering professor, who sued on behalf of himself and about 180,000 other behalf of himself and about 180,000 other subscribers to Time's Canadian edition, which suspended publication in March, 1976.

Cobbold maintained the company breached its contract with subscribers by ceasing publication of the magazine's Canadian version and substituting the U.S. edition for 60 per cent of the unexpired part of the subscription time. His suit asked the court to declare that subcribers were entitled to receive the magazine for the full term of their subscriptions or to award damages to the subscribers. Carruthers ruled that Time should not have been expected to deliver a substitute maga-zine after it stopped publishing the Canadian edition

"I do not think it is reasonable or fair that a defendant, assuming a breach of contract to deliver certain goods, should be required to deliver other goods, whether similar in nature or not, or whether of the same or different value," he wrote.

"If there is a breach of an agreement to deliver a magazine under circumstances such as exist in this case, all that the subscriber is entitled to is the return of the unearned portion of the prepaid subscription rate and in order to demonstrate that such a contract cannot be breached with impunity, some nominal amount of damages."

Sommers said if this statement applied to all contracts, a car manufacturer, for instance, would be able to stop manufacturing a particular model and owe nothing to people who had orders outstanding for that model.

Carruthers said Cobbold had attempted to represent the interests of more than 180,000 persons without trying to notify them he was

Sommers said this is not required in the U.S. nor in Canada to the extent that class actions

"To place such a requirement on the plaintiff renders the whole concept of class actions absurd. For one thing, identification of the class is information which Time alone has. Why place the burden on the plaintiff?"

Evidence heard at the trial last year said Time subscribers in Canada were given the choice of receiving the U.S. magazine for the reduced term of subscription or receiving a refund for the time left in their subscriptions.

FAST FOOD What an ideal situation for Mom and the kids to operate this very brisk take out business. In one of Victoria's fastest expanding suburbs this business is doing extremely well. There is opportunity, for expansion. This is a trim little business, that can be managed by Mom while Dad keeps his job (or vice versa). The commercial kitchen is very functional with few wasted steps. Can readily be financed for qualified purchaser. Hurry on this.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

In It's BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. It you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

3-MAKE IT EASY for the read er-prospect to reach you. Al ways give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular, hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

I-PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and cost less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower, yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

A ninth congressman in bribery scandel?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A source close to the FBI's 14-month investigation of political corruption says a ninth member of the U.S. Congress may be involved in the case.

But this source, who asked not to be named, said that at this time the ninth member does not appear to be the subject of further scrutiny, unlike the seven members of the House of Representatives and one senator whose names became public during the weekend. They remain subject to possible grand jury action.

Declining to identify the ninth-member, the source nevertheless emphasized that only one member of Congress who met with FBI undercover agents, Senator Larry Pressler (Rep. S.D.), has been cleared by the gov ernment. Sources have reported that Pressler stormed out of a meeting with undercover agents when it was indicated they represented a client willing to pay for political favors.

The source also denied that the ninth member was among three New Jersey congressmen who told reporters Monday they had rejected overtures last year similar to those made during the FBI undercover investigation. Those three were Representatives

James Howard, William Hughes and James Florio, all Democrats. Howard and Hughes said they called the FBI Monday to discuss the overtures. Florio said he did not do that because he felt the FBI already knew of unsuccessful attempts to strike a deal with him.

Besides state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, sources say subjects of the FBI investigation include Senator Harrison Williams (Dem. N.J.) and Representatives John Murphy (Dem. N.Y.), Frank Thomp-son (Dem. N.J.), Michael Myers (Dem. Pa.), Raymond Lederer (Dem. Pa.), John Jenrette (Dem S.C.), John Murtha (Dem. Pa.) and Richard Kelly

(Rep. Fla.).

Most of them have denied any wrongdoing.

In other developments Monday:

— The Justice Department announced it would investigate whether any government officials had leaked information to newsmen and others about the undercover operation, begun in mid-1978, which was conducted in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, the Washington area, South Carolina and Florida

FBI Director William Webster said the investigation, despite pub-licity about it, "is still going strong." — A middle-level Immigration and Naturalization Service investigator Alexander A. Alexandro Jr., was ar-raigned Monday in New York. He was the first person arrested for allegedly accepting a bribe from Operation Abscam undercover agents.

— Kenneth N. MacDonald, vice chairman of the five-member New Jersey Casino Control Commission, resigned after reports that he had been videotaped while seeking a $100, 000 bribe from undercover agents.

— In a telephone interview from Georgia, former Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, under whom the case began in 1978, declined to comment about the investigation. He said only, I think it would be common sense that if you are investigating someone the president might deal with, that common sense would tell you that the president ought to be told."

— The White House and the Justice Department denied that President Capter had any advance notice of the investigation.

— FBI officials also talked privately about the success of the operation, considering that one of the agents who posed as a sheik is an Italian-American with a thick New York accent who affected a British accent and was never pressed by anyone to speak Arabic, a language totally unfamilar to

Pail failed to save submerged driver

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A Bremerton, Wash. man who drove off a Seattle ferry last month, put a bucket over his head to try to stay alive after his car hit the water, says the diver who found the body.

Seattle diver Matt Kramer discovered the body of Elmer L. Larsen, 78, on Sunday, in a Cadillac that roared through the ferry Yakima Jan. 25, crashed through a gate and shot 18 metres into the bay.

Kramer said the car was upright in 24 metres of water, but sediment had covered the doors and he had to break a window to remove the body.

It appeared that he made a last-ditch effort to save himself by sticking a bucket over his head and breathing the air until someone got to him," Kramer said. Witnesses said Larsen was asleep and waiting for the ferry when a deckhand rapped on his window to wake him. They said he then started the car and was going about 80 mph when he plunged into the water.

Larsen's wife, Mabel, said her husband had been in Seattle to see a doctor for a skin disorder. She said he was a sound sleeper who sometimes suffered dizzy spells if

.C. 'planned to death' Region rapped by PCB

By BRENDA DALGLISH B.C. is being "planned to death," Municipal Affairs Bill Vander Zalm said Monday.

But Vander Zalm said in the next two or three months he will introduce a planning act that will go a long way towards reducing the overlap and lack of concerted planning.

The minister also promised the act will provide some kind of appeal process so that people who believe they have been improperly treated will be able to appeal without having to hire a lawyer or go to court. Vander Zalm did not go into more detail about the proposed act, but speculation is that regional planning may be taken away from regional districts and transfered to the provincial governent.

The minister's comments came at a meeting Monday of two factions involved in the Highlands development land residents in the Juan de Fuca Senior Citizens Centre that the provincial government has planning departments in such ministries as municipal affairs, lands, parks and housing, highways, environment, forests and fisheries as well as in other government agencies.

In addition regional districts carry out a considerable amount of plan-

The meeting was called by the minister as part of a year-long survey to gather opinions about the regional district level of government.

He asked for comments about general questions of regional district planning, as a result of their efforts relating to the Highlands.

But almost all of the two-and-a-half hour meeting was taken up with arguments for either more freedom to develop land or more long-range plan-ning of the Highlands area to include

"If you think it's tough communicating with the regional district level, it's a whole lot tougher trying to talk to somebody in some government office in Victoria," Vander Zalm said.

Although he didn't offer any opinion on the specifics of the Highlands controversy, he commended CRD efforts.

"From what I've seen in the last while it seems to me they (the CRD) have been bending over backwards to accommodate the residents.23

A plan that will triple public transit service in the Western Community and on the Saanich Peninsula was unveiled today at a meeting of the Capital Regional District's transit planning and management committee.

Larry Miller, assistant general manager of the Urban Transit Authority, said at the end of the first year of operation the suburban transit services will have carried 975,000 people.

This represents 15 rides per capita or a tripling of the present level. Operating costs for serving the Western Community will be $826,000. A total of $742,000 will be needed for the Saanich Peninsula. The average fare for Western Community transit will be 60 cents while the average for the peninsular service will be 75 cents.

Miller proposed that transit focal points de-signed to serve local patterns be established at Colwood Corners, downtown Sidney, Saanichton, and Royal Oak.

We show you mistakes to watch out for.

Everyone agrees that RRSP's are one of the very best ways to increase retirement income and reduce current in- portion of your interest costs. In short, come taxes. But not everyone knows about the little RRSP mistakes that can reduce that income.

We do. Here are some of the more obvious ones. Our free booklet will help you understand more about RRSP's and how they work.

Steer clear of places that don't offer a full range of plans.

There are different kinds of RRSP's, providing various combinations of security, interest earnings and flexibility. Royal Trust offers a unique range of six plans. Our booklet and good advice will give you a clear picture of how your choice of plans today will benefit you at retirement, or even in a few years' time. Dodge the misuse of cash.

Borrowing your RRSP money may be the wiser way.

Say you have money set aside for your RRSP, yet at the same time, you're planning a loan for some other major pur-" chase. That could be a mistake...vou may be wiser to use your cash for that purchase, and borrow the money for your RRSP.

You see, Royal Trus offers Tax Saver Loans for RRSP's, and they have one big advantage: Interest payments on Tax Saver Loans (except for loans taken for spousal RRSP's) are tax deductible in the year they're paid...so tax savings can offset a you could be well ahead.

Don't dent your retirement income by putting all your deposits in your own RRSP, when maybe you should contribute to a plan in the name of your spouse.

This can often earn you the same tax advantages today while gaining you some very valuable future tax savings when the retirement income is received.

For instance, if you both have plans, then you'll both be eligible to receive the first $1,000 tax exempt each year when you draw on them for retirement income after age 65. Further, it often makes sense to build retirement income in the name of the person expecting the lower marginal tax rate after retirement.

One-liner Rhino

By AL FORREST

Loudest applause at a twin all-candidates eting Wednesday went to Tory Allan McKinnon in the Victoria riding and to Rhino bert Maddocks in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Maddocks, who is in the race for laughs and has a good supply of one-liners, got an ovation for declaring that Pierre Trudeau has stolen the Rhino's main promise — to resign if

The Rhino party has retaliated. It has announced it plans to double-track its proposed tunnel from Canada to Japan, borrowing Trudeau's pledge to lay an additional CN track through the Rocky Mountains.

The event was jointly sponsored by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the Victoria Gyro Club. The chamber reversed an earlier announcement and let the Rhino

Among the serious entries, McKinnon got the warmest ovation, both when he was introduced and following his speech.

Applause was polite but subdued for NDP candidate Robin Blencoe, Liberal Bruce Cor bett and Marxist-Leninist Dorothy Ratzlaff. Rhino Kirk Higgins was invited but was not

For the Esquimalt-Saanich riding, applayse for the four serious candidates was surprisingly equal. Speaking were Tory Don-Junro, NDP candidate Bob Cameron, Liberal Gerry Kristianson and Philip Ney, who is an independent candidate runni

As for the NDP, he said, they always vote in favor of any expenditure (except defence). But then later they vote against any tax measure to pay for the thing they voted for earlier.

The defence minister said his budget would be increased by the inflation rate plus three per cent this year (about 13 per cent in all) and Canada will buy new fighter planes and frigates soon

Blencoe (NDP): He said the NDP and the usiness community will come closer together during the 1980s to deal with the problems fac-

The NDP will become more supportive of the free enterprise system, he said, and at the ame time businessmen will seek a larger role by government in the economy

A mixed economy will replace the present omination of private enterprise in petroleum development and will increase subsidies for transportation.

And corporations will soon be welcoming orker representatives on their board of directors, he said.

Corbett (Liberal): He criticized the Tory government for not giving aid for apartment construction, which he said is a vital need for

Victoria. He called Conservative tax amendments allowing small businessmen to pay their wives a salary and to receive lower-interest loans as "pitiful scraps."

The Liberals believe it is wise to borrow to spur the economy, even if the country goes into debt. He added that 95 per cent of the debt owed to Canadians. He reckoned the gas tax proposed by the Conservatives would have cost Canadians $19 billion by 1984 whereas in the same period the mortgage tax rebate would have returned them only $7 billion.

Ratzlaff (Marxist-Leninist): She said her party would make the rich pay but assured the audience that her definition did not include small businessmen like those at the meeting just large monopoly capitalists.

She said her party does not advocate a violent coup but believes there may be violence eventually because "a ruling class does not relinquish its status peacefully

The NDP, he said, have been trying to utbid the Liberals on pensions and have been flip-flopping on support for NATO and

Meanwhile, the Conservatives had made a serious effort to get Canada out of debt and to reach self-sufficiency in oil.

Cameron (NDP): He said the business ommunity should take a second look at the NDP because the old stereotypes are no longer

"We don't want to destroy the free enterprise system," he said. "And we are just as patriotic as anyone.

Many NDP members are stockholders, he said. He, himself, had invested 18 months worth of salary (as a teacher) in shares.

There is a stereotype that the NDP promotes a large civil service, he said, and yet Saskatchewan, which has an NDP government, has the lowest number of civil servants per capita of any province in Canada. Kristianson (Liberal): He called the Tory action to withhold further government fund-ing from the Trident plant at Sidney "economic sabotag y He said a Liberal government would honor commitments to provide further grants.

He said the Clark government should be defeated "before it can do any more damage to Vancouver Island.

Ney (Independent): He said there are 1,000 families in B.C. waiting to adopt children and yet abortions continue

Since abortions were liberalized in 1969, he said, there have been 300,000 in Canada, which is more than the whole population of Vancouver Island From a medical point of view, he said, there is no evidence that abortion is good for

"There will be 65,000 unborn children (in all hang out.

Canada) who will be killed at your expense this year.

Frequent abortions has led to a cheapening of human life, he said. The most common cause of death among youngsters in the U.S. is infanticide

Maddocks (Parti Rhinoceros): He offered erious platform. He said oil tankers could be kept out of local waters by bringing back Ripple Rock (which was blasted out of Georgia Strait because it was a hazard to shipping.)

He said Canada should have a negative loan interest rate. "When you borrow money, they should pay you

This payment, he said, would be subject to tax and Ottawa could use the money to pay the banks. The result would be the same as it is now, he said, except the money would go around the circle in a different direction.

In a question period, Maddocks said his position on abortion was simple: "If necessary, yes; if not necessary, no.

Other candidates (except Ney) took the same stand as the Rhino party, only they took longer to say it.

On capital punishment, only the two Tory andidates McKinnon and Munro had no hesitation in supporting it. Kristianson said he might vote yes and the others said they were

As usual in the discussion the Rhino Party had the last word.

Minister rebukes Elworthy

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser Monday publicly rapped the knuckles of B.C. Steamship Corp. president Arthur Elworthy for his angry attack on B.C. Ferry Corp. general manager Charles Gal-

In a confidential letter, leaked Friday, Elworthy accused Gallagher of acting contrary to the public interest by insisting the ferry Queen of Surrey be used on the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run instead of releasing the vessel for use on the Victoria-Seattle run as a replacement for the Princess Marguerite.

The government decided instead to lease the much smaller Queen of Prince Rupert to B.C. Steamships as the Marguerite's replacement

Elworthy wrote that Gallagher was obsessed with having the Surrey on the northern service. He charged the ferry chief with incompetence and added, "He has deceived his board of directors, his minister and, of course, the pre-

Fraser said he doesn't know where Elworthy got the impression the Surrey had been promised for the Victoria-Seattle run and had only been sent north because of Gallagher's obstinacy.

The minister pointed out that Premier Bill Bennett announced the decision to put the Surrey on the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run as far back as last May 31. Fraser made no reference to a poorly-concealed cabinet split on mated that refitting and renovating the Queen of Prince Rupert for the Vitoria-Seattle service will cost about $1 million.
